

History as a visual concept: Peter of Poitiers' Compendium historiae

This project explores Peter of Poitiers' twelfth-century diagrammatic work, the Compendium historiae in genealogia Christi. Ubiquitous throughout the mediaeval and early modern periods, the Compendium historiae's graphic and pictorial elements gave it semantic and aesthetic power in the classroom, and beyond.

Diagrams

Other diagrams embedded in the graphic metastructure visualise objects in biblical history. These include: cross-sections of Noah's Ark, forty-two encampments of the Israelites in the desert, the twelve tribes of Israel, and a plan of Jerusalem.

Example: twelve tribes of Israel

Represents the placements of tents of the Levites and the Tribes of Israel around the Tabernacle during the journey through the desert. Several standard archetypes are found in the manuscript witnesses: i.e., quatrefoil, square, circle, free-form.

Our team | what we are doing

Manuscripts (late 12th to early 16th c.)

Over three hundred manuscript witnesses provide the material for the synthesis and modelling of the main graphic archetypes, a critical edition of the text, and a codicological database.

Visualisation of the graphic metastructure

Based on significant witnesses we are using SVG to model the genealogical structure of the Compendium. This will serve as the basis of our edition, to be displayed in a navigable interface, online and publicly available.

Critical edition of the text

Transcription, translation and the critical text with apparatus (critical, biblical, sources) are integrated into the graphic metastructure. They will be linked with the navigable interface.

Codicological database

The database of the manuscripts, linked to the navigable edition, includes detailed descriptions of each witness. It includes codicological and textual data, information regarding the graph and diagram archetypes, and art historical analysis of the images.
